RICHMOND – Governor Bob McDonnell today announced that Federal-Mogul Corporation (NASDAQ: FDML), a leading global automotive supplier, plans to invest $10 million to expand its existing 275,000-square-foot automotive engine bearing manufacturing facility located at Blacksburg Industrial Park. The company's investment will provide for the installation of additional manufacturing lines and equipment, driving the creation of 50 new jobs in Montgomery County.

Speaking about today's announcement, Governor McDonnell said, "Virginia is recognized as the top state for business not only for our ability to attract new companies, but, equally important, for our ability to grow these relationships and retain business. As a valued Virginia employer since 1971, Federal-Mogul is a prime example of the cooperation at state and local levels to foster long-term relationships with global enterprises. With its close proximity to the Virginia Tech Corporate Research Center, a highly educated workforce and excellent quality of life, it is no surprise that Montgomery County is able to draw top technology and advanced manufacturing companies like Federal-Mogul."

"In addition to a location in Winchester, Federal-Mogul employs close to 400 Virginians in Montgomery County," said Jim Cheng, Virginia Secretary of Commerce and Trade. "It is always a significant victory when a company decides to expand a facility in Virginia, and I would like to congratulate Federal-Mogul on their growth to date."
